INTRODUCTION

The World and our Nations are in uncharted territory as a result of the pandemic known as the COVID-19 outbreak.

The situation of 3Nations communities is different from cities and towns in southern Canada: we have limited health care services, supplies can be challenging to obtain, and many people are at elevated risk. Isolation has its advantages in situations like this, but it also has its disadvantages.

We must draw upon the strengths that have made the 3Nations and their communities effective in the past, to mitigate the risks that threaten us with this pandemic.

Now is the time for solidarity, community spirit, personal behavioural change and resilience in combatting this infection. We can and must all play our part in trying to delay the transmission of COVID-19.

The actions being taken should be driven by these primary goals:

1. Prevent the arrival of the virus and, if required, limit community spread;
2. Protect and minimize health impacts to our community members at greater risk from COVID-19;
3. Strengthen the public health measures needed to respond to and manage COVID-19; and
4. Reduce the COVID-19 social and economic impacts experienced by our communities.

This Plan charts a course of action for the Tahltan, Kaska, and Tlingit in how we will work in unity, as 3Nations, to address our unique situation within Canada. COVID-19 knows no boundaries. All generations must come together and support each other in the fight against this disease. Working together we will prevail.

HOW CAN WE REDUCE THE THREAT OF COVID-19?

Our 3Nations, communities, leadership, staff, health and social support services, including the Stikine Wholistic Working Group members, will need to implement a new and innovative care model to support our vulnerable groups. This plan is tailored specifically to COVID-19, and the need to social distance, self-isolate and in some cases, quarantine, in order to stop the spread and flatten the curve for our communities.

Federal and provincial public health officials stress that the pandemic may take months, rather than weeks, to run its course.

We are acutely aware that communities closing themselves off from the general public, and practicing physical distancing within our communities, will have significant mental health implications for many people – including our elders, children and youth. We will support communities to implement strategies both from within, and from outside, our Nations to address these serious challenges.

Thankfully, we have small communities, and we can identify our most vulnerable groups and individuals. With the right plan, we can be proactive and reactive, to provide the protection and support needed until the pandemic is over.

At its heart, 3Nations’ response to COVID-19 is collaborative and public health-led, founded on well-established and evidence-based approaches in dealing with outbreaks of infectious disease.

Government has a responsibility to deliver health care services in five of our six communities (Iskut has control over its own health care), and our community leaders must therefore remain in close contact with government. But the 3Nations’ collective leadership – both elected and administrative – has a responsibility to ensure that our unique challenges are adequately addressed.

The actions being taken should be driven by four primary goals:

- 1. Prevent the arrival of the virus and, if required, limit community spread;
- 2. Protect and minimize health impacts to our community members at greater risk from COVID-19;
- 3. Strengthen the public health measures needed to respond to and manage COVID-19; and
- 4. Reduce the COVID-19 social and economic impacts experienced by our communities.

To achieve the above goals foundational pieces are being put in place:

- 1. Weekly schedule identifying the coordination across various teams, groups and committees
- 2. Planning and actions across the four areas of:
 - a. Prevention (Education and Awareness)
 - b. Preparedness (Planning)
 - c. Response
 - d. Recovery
